Sconderam, English teacher, Wanchai Government School, gave evidence, on which His Worship convicted the accused and fined him $5. The only excuse offered by the ascused was 876 that he did not know the cask, into which the water was turned on, was overflowing. At 394 Broadway, Shanghai, the wife of The last performance by Mrs Potter and Bellew and their company took place last night, when 'David Garrick' was put on the boards of the Theatre Royal. A good many people in Hongkong had previously seen Mrs Potter as Violet Gresham and Mr Bellew in the part of David Garrick, when on their previous visit to the colony. On that ocasion, however, they had not the support of the talented company among whom the other parts were distributed last night, and the representation of the popular play was not so successful. David Garrick is pao of Mr Beliew's favourite parts, and although it is not a part which is likely to hold the sympathy of the audience throughout, Mr Bollow had abundant proof of the expelience of his acting in the liberal applause with which he was rewarded. That Mrs Potterwas excellent as Violet Gresham goes without saying. She was charming in appearance and in scting, as she slupys is, and herdresses no doubt attracted a great deal of attention from the ladies in the actions. how much this is due to real increase in the number of persons attacked or to the increased surveillance of the Sanitary Board staff it would be difficult to say. Up to the present time the house-to-house visitation in search of cases of plague was carried out by police, but energetic as they have been they were unable to get through the crowded houses of the infected districts with sufficient celerity to overtake all the cases. They have now received the aid of squads of soldiers, and it is more than likely the increase in the numbers of cases is due to the increased body of searchers. 'FRAGRANT WATERS' MURMUR That last week the Plague and the Drought went hand in hand, but the welcome rain has since put an end to the fears of water-famine, and sluiced out the old vilely-amelling drains of the Colony.

That Nature has taken her course on this Island with wonderful regularity for nearly half a century, and it is now asserted the authorities here often live on in the hope of something turning up to provent disasters.

That the coming of the rain was fortunate, for we had but a few days' niggardly supply of water left to us. That the Bubonic Plague would not wait for the cleansing showers, and it will be some days yet before the good effects of the white-washing, disinfeoting and oleansing processes become apparent.

That there is great reason for thankfulness no serious epidemio ever visited Chinatown when it was at its worst, say fiveand-twenty years ago.

That it is hoped, after this disease has been entirely done with here, an exhaustive investigation will be made into the causes of the outbreak.

That this should be done in the most thoroughgoing manner possible, so that all the lessons intended by Nature enforced through this visitation may be learnt off by heart, and wholesomely impressed upon the minds of our Health Authorities.

That serious misgivings have frequently been felt and expressed about the efficienoy of our new drainage on the separate system, and of its applicability and suitability to the Chinese mode of living.

That, although the filthy localities wherein the Plague seems to have been bred are apparently innocent of nearly every kind of drainage, it is possible the appearance of this unwelcome visitor may force to light some facts that will help us to improve the sanitary condition of the

WHAT 'HIGHER EDUCATION' IS DOING.

If we may judge by the complaints that are everywhere becoming so frequent, all occupations that task the energies of the mind rather then those of the body are largely overstocked. Only a few days ago we were informed that there are eight thousand barristers, of whom only abuot sixteen hundred can be said to be in practice. And yet, in the face of these and similar statistics, we are all enamoured of higher education, and what is called the refinement of the masses. Men as large and liberal-minded as Taine, and M Melahior de Vogue declare compulsory education, for this among other reasons, to be a shortsighted policy; and, though it is rank herosy to echo that opinion, numbers of people in this country hold it. We are making people so educated that manual labour is repugant to them. As for doing anything disagreeable, or following an occupation that is irksome or 'inferior, how can a lad who has passed creditably through the Sixth Standard, or a young man who has attended a course of Local Examination lectures, be expected to hear of such a thing? -Standard. Here, as in America, there is a great imperfectly organised field of work between our primary system and our university culture. Secondary education is left largely to mere chance, apart from the splendid endowments which have given to few great schools their unquestioned predominance. It should be for the university to direct the new secondary culture, and to so transform itself that it is able to do so with efficiency. It is, in short, for the university to assume that commanding position whoh it did assume in the Middle board until Noon on Monday, the 28th Ages, when Paris, Oxford, and Bologus not only preserved and extended the culture which had been preserved from the elderworld, but led the thought of the time, and impressed their mark upon all the lesser schools of learning, however humble, which then existed. There is no apologist for our universities who can seriously contend that they serve this high function now We gladly acknowledge all the changes for good which have taken place, and the many signs there are that the universities see, albeit dimly, the new conditions of life which surround them on every side. But scarcely anyone has yet fully realised that democracy will involve the democratisation of culture, as of politics, industry, and nocial life .- Daily chronicle.

THEY SPORT WITH HUMAN LIFE. I'll give you the plain, facts in the case, and you shall help ine to judge whether there was a mistake mede or not. It seems that some time in 1880-in the winter, no doubt-Mr. Strong, of Leicester, was taken down with influenza, often called the grip; and truly a strong grip it has when it once takes a hold. Well, I am glad to say he was able to fight out the battle and get the best of it. But the best wasn't anything to brag of. The infinenza hadn't exactly beaten Mr. Strong, but it | THE Steamship SIKH, Captain J. left him in very bad condition. And here is where you and I properly pick up the thread of the story. His meals didn't tempt him; the most savoury of dishes had no charms for our friend. He had lost his appetite, and in the long run a man had better lose his money. He forced down some thing of course, but it gave him such a pain it the chest that he wished he hadn't swallowed t mouthful: Then, naturally, he got so weak and nervous he couldn't sloop o' nights. This, as everybody knows, is the straight road to the graveyard, through the madheuse. Lots people are making that trip all the time. We must eat and we must sleep. If we don't we are done for. Neuralgic pains, too, made matters worse for Mr. Strong. He saw a doctor, and what did the doctor do? This is what the patient says on that point: "This doctor gave | Freight, apply to me all kinds of strengthening medicines, buts none of them did me any good, and I continued to suffer for month after month."

Just what we might have expected. Mr., Strong forther says: "In October, 1890, my friend. Mr. James Webster, of 28, New Walk, Leicester, advised me to try a medicine called Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, and I followed his advice. The first bottle gave me great relief, and I began to digest my food and to have an appetite; and after I had used three bottles I was quite another man. I was completely cured. All my aches and pains left me, my strength returned, and I have been all right ever since. What astonished me was that the Syrup cured me so quickly, and I shall never cease thanking Mr. Webster for making it known to me. You are at liberty to publish my case for the benefit of others. Yours truly, (Signed) W. Stnone, 41, East Street, Leicester, December 30th, 1891."

if so, what was it? Yes, there was a common mistake made. It is an old and seemingly hopeless blunder. "The doctor," says Mr. Strong, "gave me all kinds of strengthening medicines.'

Open wide your ears and remember what I'm going to tell you now; remember it for the hour of your own helplessness and pain: There is no such thing as strengthening medicine, neither in the earth nor in the waters which are under the earth. This is the truth; all the high-class doctors know it. As for the others _well, there! the less said about them the better.

Mr. Strong took "strengthening medicines," and what happened to him? Why, he "continued to suffer month after month." Did you ever see a horse made stronger and fatter by spurs and lash-whips? leaving off the cats and hay? I think you have not. And that is what "strengthening medicines" do, and all they do. So-called tonics are like making a sick man walk far and fast by kicking him at every other step. Nothing under the sun but digested food imparts strength; no drug ever does. And herein is the perpetual success and victory of Mother Seigel's Syrup; it cleanses the system of disease-poison and leaves Nature sweet and free. The stompoli then cries. "Feed me," and so power and health come back like the green grass after a shower. Do you see? Mother Seigel proclaims "I destroy disease!" Nature responds, "Only do that, and I can take care of myself."

The disease is indigestion and dyspepsia. Mr. Strong had it and was badly treated. Should you have it, try the Syrup first—not last, for I have told you why. EXPERIENCE. London, March, 1892.

WHEN the late Rev. Dr Lawrie was examining a few of his parishioners, he asked John Anderson, a stolld farmer, to repeat the Tenth Commandment. John stumbled on as far as thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, and then stopped. Come on, said the Doctor. thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's Na, na, said John, 'none o' that Doctor. A WELL KNOWN M.P., on setting out for a day's sport with a friend, pointed to a large spaniel which lay apparently asleep in the hall, and bet his friend a gninea he could not attract the dog's attention. The bet was readily accepted, and after the failure of a shrill whistle and a blank cartridge to cause the slightest movement the guines was delivered up. That's my old dog Mahaima I had stuffed a few weeks ago laughed the M.P. and that's the tenth guines he's brought me. Two young ladies, members of an established Church, went to an evening service in a U.P. church lately. Miss B. put a shilling in the plate instead of a helfpenny. Finding out her mistake next day, she was greatly annoyed, and said had it been her ain kirk she would not have cared. Her friend, Miss H., meeting the beadle of the U.P. church, told him Miss B. wanted him. He called, and Miss B. told him she wanted her change back. 'Na na, he l said, 'ye'll get mae change back, bit ye can come to the kirk for 22 Sundays, and put nothing in the plate.

PUBLISHED BI-MONTHLY. THIS Review, which was intended to meet the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of Notes and Queries on China and Japan, has reached its Twenty-first Volume. The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the Far East, and about which every intelligent person connected with China or Japan is desirous of acquiring trustworthy information. It lacludes many interesting Notes and original Papers on the Arts, Sciences, Ethnology, Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, and the Far East generally. Recently a new departure has been taken, and the Review now gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Review in this direction, the Magazine would be made more generally

The Review department receives special attention, and endeavours are made to present a careful and concise record of Literature on China etc., and to give critiques embodying sketches of the Most recent works on such topics. Authors and Publishers are requested to forward works to 'Editor, China Review, care of China
